Signal for Conferences.

As one of the most influential men in Mexico, Senor Limantour's arrival here was interpreted generally as signal for a series of conferences with prominent Mexicans, including Senor De La Barra, the Mexican ambassador, and Colonel Porfirio Diaz, Jr., son of President Diaz.

Senor De La Barra reached the city early in the day, under the impression that the Kron Prinz Wilhelm, on which Senor Limantour arrived, would dock in the morning, and hurried back to Washington this afternoon.
